GRADUATE PROGRAMS

We didn't invent distance learning. We perfected it.

Distance learning is not new. It has been evolving over the decades. But while others have been busy discovering it, Walden University has been busy perfecting it.

Walden has a flexible, student-centered program that allows mid-career professionals the opportunity to earn a Ph.D. from their own location at their own pace.

The Walden Information Network links everyone in Walden and provides services such as access to the Internet, library resources, and online seminars.

Walden's faculty is comprised of nationally recognized scholars in: Administration/Management; Education; Health Services; Human Services and Psychology. Most students complete their doctorate in two-and-a-half to three years. Walden also offers a Master's in Educational Change and Technology Innovation.
